

---

Eyes to the sky as people gathered at College of DuPage to watch solar eclipse

5:35 pm

---

The clouds seemed to part at just the right time Aug. 21 at the College of DuPage solar eclipse party. As the eclipse neared its peak, the "oohs" and "aahs" of the crowd gathered outside the Student Services Center signaled the sky had cleared just enough for an amazing view of the celestial event.

[Mark Busch - mbusch@shawmedia.com]

College Of DuPage employees Sal Garcia, (left) a multimedia producer, and Alyssa Pasquale, an assistant professor in engineering and physics, get a telescope focused on the solar eclipse Aug. 21 during the viewing party on the campus in Glen Ellyn.

You might be interested in...

